

From:
To: conspol@djei.ie,
Date: 27/03/2017 14:28
Subject: Touting consultation

Hi

Just to contribute to the discussion and feedback.
The re-selling of tickets by third party's beyond face value should be illegal.

This is particularly applicable to ticket sellers own sub companies such as seatwave.

They claim to be facilitating the resale by members of the public.
But they stand to profit immensely and often this creates a sense of demand which may not exist therefore justifying higher ticket prices generally for a venue .

Mainly it means that most people cannot afford to engage in cultural activity and enjoy music.
Simply due to greed on the part of the ticket sellers

Steven fahy

Sent from my iPhone

ATTACHMENTS: